Hope Academy Students
Painting a story of Peace, Equality, and Teamwork with Tenacity on 48′ canvas

BY CATHERINE TONG

Students from Hope Academy are sharing a story, but this story will contain few written words. It is the story of a Wangari Maathai, a Kenyan woman and is told with paint on a 48′ long stretch of canvas. It is the story of a woman who planted hope for her people, and it is told by 60 students who are beginning to paint their own life stories. Listen in.

Wangari’s story: Wangari Maathai was born in Kenya in 1940. After attending university in the U.S., Wangari returned to Kenya only to find her homeland ravaged by deforestation and her people suffering the consequences. One seedling at a time, Wangari began a movement of tree planting, known as The Greenbelt Movement, in her village, surrounding cities, and eventually across Kenya. Although she faced much opposition, Wangari persevered in order to help her people provide themselves with firewood, clean drinking water, balanced diets, shelter, and income. While she led the way, Maathai said, “I’m very conscious of the fact that you can’t do it alone. It’s teamwork. When you do it alone, you run the risk that when you are no longer there nobody else will do it.” Wangari was awarded with the Nobel Peace Prize in 2004.

The story of creating the mural: After reading the book, Wangari’s Trees of Peace by Jeannette Winter, students from the 4th grade, 6th grade, and 11th/12th grade art classes at Hope Academy collaborated to design a large mural to retell Wangari’s story. Each of the groups began brainstorming ideas for their piece of the mural. Under the direction of art teachers Tasha Irving, Catherine Tong, and Eliisa Fonseca, students helped sketch out a plan. After one month, meeting once to two times weekly, the mural was completed. The most challenging part, according to 4th grader, Caeden C., was “trying to work around each other with paint and agreeing on who should paint which parts”. But the payoff paid off.

Gabriel García Márquez 1928–2014

Father of “Magical Realism” has died having given an incredible literary legacy

Colombian novelist and Nobel laureate Gabriel García Márquez died April 17th. He wrote some of the most beautiful words ever put to paper in Spanish or English.

Two of his greatest literary works were “Love in the Time of Cholera” and “One Hundred Years of Solitude.”

Considered the father of magical realism and the most important Spanish-language author since Miguel de Cervantes, the 17th century, García Márquez’ powerful impact on the literary world will not be soon forgotten.

“What matters in life is not what happens to you but what you remember and how you remember it.”

“If I knew that today would be the last time I’d see you, I would hug you tight and pray the Lord be the keeper of your soul. If I knew that this would be the last time you pass through this door, I’d embrace you, kiss you, and call you back for one more. If I knew that this would be the last time I would hear your voice, I’d take hold of each word to be able to hear it over and over again. If I knew this is the last time I see you, I’d tell you I love you, and would not just assume foolishly you know it already,” Gabriel García Márquez March 6, 1928-April 17, 2014; One Hundred Years of Solitude

Wangari Muta Maathai

Born: April 1, 1940; Nyeri, Kenya
Died: Sept. 25, 2011; Nairobi, Kenya

Wangari Maathai was a Kenyan political and environmentalist and women’s rights activist and her country’s assistant minister of environment, natural resources and wildlife.

Throughout my life, I have never stopped to strategize my next steps. I often just kept walking along, through whichever doors opened.” —Wangari Maathai

In 1971, Wangari Maathai received a Ph.D., effectively becoming the first woman in either East or Central Africa to earn a doctorate. She was elected to Kenya’s National Assembly in 2002 and has written several books and scholarly articles. She won the Nobel Peace Prize for her “holistic approach to sustainable development that embraces democracy, human rights, and women’s rights in particular.” Maathai died of cancer.

Wangari Maathai grew up in a village. Her father supported her education by working as a tenant farmer. At this time, Kenya was still a British colony. Maathai’s family decided to send her to school, which was uncommon for girls to be educated at this time. She started at a local primary school when she was 8 years old.

An excellent student, Maathai was able to continue her education at the Loreto Girls’ High School. She won a scholarship in 1960 to go to college in the United States. Maathai attended Mount St. Scholastica College in Atchison, Kansas, where she earned a bachelor’s degree in biology in 1964. Two years later, she completed a master’s degree in biological sciences at the University of Pittsburgh. Maathai would later draw inspiration by the civil rights and anti-Vietnam War movements in the United States.

Returning to Kenya, Maathai studied veterinary anatomy at the University of Nairobi. She made history in 1971, becoming the first woman in East Africa to earn a doctorate degree. Maathai joined the university’s faculty and became the first woman to chair a university department in the region in 1976.

Green Belt Movement

Maathai sought to end the devastation of Kenya’s forests and lands caused by development and remedy the negative impact that this development had on the country’s environment. In 1977, she launched the Green Belt Movement to reforest her beloved country while helping the nation’s women. “Women needed income and they needed resources because theirs were being depleted,” Maathai explained to People magazine. “So we decided to solve both problems together.”

Proving to be very successful, the movement is responsible for the planting of more than 30 million trees in Kenya and providing roughly 30,000 women with new skills and opportunities. Maathai also challenged the government on its development plans and its handling of the country’s land. An outspoken critic of dictator Daniel arap Moi, she was beaten and arrested numerous times. One of her most famous actions was in 1989. Maathai and her organization staged a protest in Nairobi’s Uhuru Park to prevent the construction of a skyscraper. Her campaign drew international attention, and the
“It is not true that people stop pursuing dreams because they grow old, they grow old because they stop pursuing dreams.” — Gabriel García Márquez, “Memories of My Melancholy Whores”
"Those distances are so large that it doesn't even make sense to measure them in feet or miles, the way we measure most lengths."

The name stuck! To cover up the aroma of that decision, another person added "Ventura means Happiness and Good Luck to You! Bueno Ventura!" That stuck too since now we have this name and we are doing everything we can to make it a place of happiness and good luck for our residents and stakeholders. — R.R. Albee

Founded in 2002

Although this area has always been part of Phillips, the neighborhood was only recognized by the City of Minneapolis in 2002. That means that the neighborhood association is vested by the City as the official organization to legally represent the interests and concerns of residents and property owners located there.

Many of the original buildings constructed along the East Franklin Avenue thoroughfare have been torn down and replaced with newer purposed commercial and residential structures. Yet unlike parts of the downtown area, some truly beautiful building remain. The 1914 Carnegie-funded Franklin Community Library "has been a gathering place for new immigrants and lifelong learners" since it opened. It truly anchors the block in which it stands and informs the design of adjacent buildings, such as Many Rivers East and West and the Anishinabe Wekiugun residential building a bit east along Franklin Avenue. Mark Orfield's classic apartments along Franklin and Park Avenue have graced Phillips for decades and show how timeless design must be preserved at all costs. The Franklin Artworks was transformed from a Porno Palace and soon will add a new vitality to the area.

Children's Village at Franklin and Portland was the first of four new buildings to anchor the western part of Ventura Village. This is part of the vision of Hope Community to transform areas of decay and depression into a vibrant community that ensures lower income people that they will not be replaced by gentrification strategies. These and many other newer buildings are part of an effort that began in the early 1990s that has brought more than $130 million of new investment into the Ventura Village part of the Phillips Community. The fourth corner of Franklin and Portland will see new construction in 2014, along with Trinity First Lutheran's building on Franklin and 13th Street. In addition to these projects, Norway House will be replacing Wings Financial on Franklin and Tenth and will be constructing new structures on that block. The American Indian Development Corporation has been working on a project further east near Highway 55 and may receive the green light this year. Native American Community Development Institute is already underway in an arts-related boulevard strip project between Highway 55 (I-394) Avenue and the Metro Light Rail's Franklin Station. All of this means that Ventura Village is chocked full of exciting projects and artworks that transform the landscape. — R.R. Albee

John A. Robischon, died 1909 at 30
honored with grave marker in 2014

John A. Robischon is one of our recently discovered veterans. In April 2013, Jim and Roni Robischon contacted the cemetery because they were planning a trip to Minneapolis and wanted to visit the graves of their relatives who are buried in the cemetery. John Robischon was Jim’s great uncle. Peter Robischon, one of John’s children, is also buried in the cemetery, but not next to his father. In one of the e-mails that we exchanged, Roni mentioned that John Robischon was a veteran. His military records show that he enlisted at Sauk Center, Minnesota on August 9, 1899, as a minor. His military papers provide a detailed physical description of him so that we know that he was 5’6” tall and weighed 122 pounds. He had a slight astigmatism in his right eye but in his left eye his vision was 20/20. He had two noticeable scars, one on his right temple and the other on his right foot. Like so many veterans of the Philippine-American War he was sick much of the time that he was in the service. He suffered from malaria, gastritis, and from injuries due to an accident.

When he got out of the service he married Hulda Erickson. They had three children: John (1903), Lilliane (1905) and Peter (1906). Peter died from dioxilosis in 1907 at the age of one year, 3 months and 10 days. A little less than two years later, on July 11, 1909, John Robischon died from stomach cancer; he was 30 years old.

After over one hundred years his grave will finally have a marker. With the permission of his family and the documentation that they provided, John Robischon has a beautiful, upright, marble marker. We hope that we will be able to get it set before Memorial Day.

honored with grave marker in 2014

Spanish-American War from Apr. 25, 1898 to Dec. 10, 1898. U.S. received Philippines by Treaty from Spain. Revolutionary leaders of Philippines had Spain as a common enemy during the Sp-Am War but after didn’t want one colonial power to replace another. The Philippine Insurrection began Feb. 4, 1899 lasting until July 4th, 1902 during which 125,000 troops served costing $400 M, 4,200 Americans died & 2,900 wounded. John Robischon was one of those wounded and died soon after the peace.

Painting: Peace, Equality, and Teamwork with Tenacity on 48’ canvas

Maathai from page 1 project was eventually dropped. The place in the park where she demonstrated became known as “Freedom Corner.” The following year, Maathai was beaten and badly injured at another protest in “Freedom Corner.” She was calling for the release of political prisoners. What had started out as an environmental movement quickly became a political effort as well. “Nobody would have bothered me if all I did was to encourage women to plant trees,” she later said, according to The Economist. But I started seeing the linkages between the problems that we were dealing with and the root causes of environmental degradation. And one of those root causes was misgovernment.”

International Acclaimed Activist

Maathai remained a vocal opponent of the Kenyan government until Moi’s political party lost control in 2002. After several failed attempts, she finally earned a seat in the country’s parliament that same year. Maathai soon was appointed assistant minister of environment, natural resources and wildlife. In 2004, she received a remarkable honor. Maathai was given the 2004 Nobel Peace Prize for “her contribution to sustainable development, democracy and peace,” according to the Nobel Foundation website.

In her Nobel speech, Maathai said that picking her for the renowned peace prize “challenged the world to broaden the understanding of peace: There can be no peace without equitable development; and there can be no development without sustainable management of the environment in a democratic and peaceful space.” She also called for the release of fellow activist Aung San Suu Kyi in her talk.

Later Years

Maathai shared her amazing life story with the world in the 2006 memoir Unbowed. Maathai was survived by her three children: Waweru, Wanjiru and Muta.

Former U.S. vice president and fellow environmentalist Al Gore was among those who offered remembrances of Maathai. “Wangari overcame incredible obstacles to devote her life to service—service to her children, to her constituents, to the women, and indeed all the people of Kenya—and to the world as a whole,” according to The New York Times. She remains a potent example of how one person can be a force for change. As Maathai once wrote in her memoir, “What people see as fearlessness is really persistence.”

was great, not only in the finished project but in the learning that took place in the process. 4th grader, Javier T., loved accomplishing something together that none of them could have done on their own. Wangari’s message was sinking in.

The stories of the children: Students at Hope Academy come from a wide range of ethnic and socio-economic backgrounds, truly reflecting the Phillips neighborhood, where Hope Academy started out nearly 15 years ago. No matter where their stories have taken them thus far, Hope’s mission for them is this: “To foster hope in God within the inner-city neighborhoods of Minneapolis by providing youth with an outstanding, Christ-centered education.” Students are taught they can be who they wanted to be and make a difference in the world.

The mural will be displayed at the 82nd annual “Festival of Nations” which will be held May 1-4 at the St. Paul RiverCentre. The festival is Minnesota’s largest and longest standing festival celebrating cultural diversity. Representatives from 90 ethnic groups will bring music, demonstrations, ethnic foods, exhibits, and dance. The theme for this year, “Peace Among the People”, will highlight a Peace Path leading to a Peace Garden in the exhibition area. Hope’s mural will be a major part of the Peace Path. Come walk the path and be inspired by both the story of Wangari and of the youth of our neighborhood. For more info visit festivalofnations.com and hopeschool.org. (Mural measures 4’x48’ stretched across six canvases)

Running Wolf Facility now Phillips Fitness Center by Park Board

BY AL BANGOUA

Unfortunately, Running Wolf was no longer able to operate the fitness center at the Phillips Community Center. We would like to thank staff and volunteers who worked tirelessly to make the fitness center a success and for all their efforts and care that was provided for the community who used the fitness center every day. We also want to thank Connie Norman for her leadership and dedication to Running Wolf and the community. Thank you Connie! The Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board, recognizing the value of the fitness center to the community and its role in providing services to its residents, entered into an agreement with Indian Health Board and the Native American Community Clinic to take over operation of the fitness center starting in January 2014.

To help make this transition as fluid as possible, The MPRB is working to ensure as little change as possible to the fitness center users, for example:

- Operating hours will remain the same, 10am-7pm Monday - Thursday, and Saturdays 10am-2pm. Phillips Fitness Center is now open 10am-7pm Mon-Fri and Sat 10am-2pm.
- Monthly dues will remain at $10.00 per month.
- Members can re-register with the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board at the fitness center and will be issued a membership card.
- There will still be personal trainers and group fitness classes available at the center, instructors will be scheduled over the next few weeks.
- The Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board thanks all of the users for their patience and understanding during this time of transition, and look forward to providing the best service possible promoting healthy living at Phillips Community Center. Again, MPRB’s purpose is to continue the essential services that was provided for our community and continue to provide for the health and well-being of our community which we serve every day. If you have any questions please contact Anthony Papa at 612-370-4946 and he will be more than happy to give further detail and information.

Waite House Healthy Living Initiative

BY JILLIAN CLEARMAN, INITIATIVE COORDINATOR

There are some fun new ways to get active in Phillips this spring and summer. As part of its mission to make the healthy choice the easy choice for everyone in the neighborhood, the Waite House Phillips Community Healthy Living Initiative is proud to support the following activities through its Active Living Micro-Grant Program. Do you have an idea for a new fitness activity, or know of an existing activity that could use more support? Another round of grants is planned for later this year. Visit philippsecommunity.org and sign up for the quarterly newsletter to be notified when proposals will be accepted for the next round of Active Living Micro-Grant funding.

Bike and Eat

Adults and families are invited to join Hope Community for these monthly rides to different places for good food, bike support, and fun. Planned destinations include nearby farmers markets and the SPOKES Bike/Walk Center. Each ride will include a picnic lunch. Registration starts in April and the rides will take place on the first Saturday of every month from May to October.

Native Sons
What happens to people who drive west on Franklin Avenue to the point where it ceases to exist? It is likely they will turn south on Penn Avenue and discover Birchbark Books one block away. That’s what happened to me.

Birchbark is locally our best store of Native American Indian literature. I did purchase one of Louise Erdrich’s fourteen novels while there.

But it was by chance that I perused a geography book which revealed a park named after our city. Two words spoke to me—“Chicago.” Today we call the place “Chicago.”

“Shikaakwa” was the Illiniwek word for a place where the waters flow from one body of water to another. The English of today drives southeast for eight hours to a place named in honor of a shameless conqueror.

It happened then that two masterminds with a penchant for insensitivity—paraded people from the judge’s country without the fear and panic, somehow making it right. This young man was all about self-righteousness. His analy-sis flowed from the vantage of all social classes in the course of their dynamic inter-relations. Look at what these greedy foreign powers and their drones have done to our psyches over the years…you can’t even go outside anymore. But it was by chance that I found myself in a world where people from the judge’s country are free to kill more with drone strikes. They seem to carry out justice only when it is convenient for them and in their best interest.

Imagine a society where the government, in the form of the police, has the right to decide who lives and who dies, how they live, the way they live. It is likely they will turn south on Penn Avenue and discover Birchbark Books one block away. That’s what happened to me. Birchbark is locally our best store of Native American Indian literature. Frank Reflections

Irqi Judge “brushes off” Bush lawsuit against Iraqis for George’s death

BY FRANK ERICKSON

An Iraqi judge has dismissed a lawsuit brought against certain individuals in the Iraqi government who killed George Bush with a drone strike in 2005—the lawsuit was filed by Bush family members.

Allowing a lawsuit against indi-viduals would hinder their ability in the future to act decisively in defense of Iraq interests, said the Iraqi judge. I can understand the outrage that people here in America are experiencing right now. That a foreign judge would so easily dismiss something not based on it being right or wrong, but based on keeping the door open so people from the judge’s country are free to kill more with drone strikes. They seem to carry out justice only when it is convenient for them and in their best interest.

BEE KEEPERS OF SWEET WONDER

WONDER SHUFFLE

TURN TO SOUL-ER POWER

GET ON BOARD THE WONDER-FILLED SOLAR SOUL TRAIN!
EVERYONE WELCOME HERE!

This train features the solar lantern and community weaving work of Communities of Light and ushers in the turning of heart energy and action toward the health of all, just as the great wheel of Sun turns our days into years.

A SOUL-er Train dances in joyful defiance against the dangers posed by then Oil Trains rolling through Minnesota these days. An Oil Spill wreaks havoc with all kin in the ecosystem for decades. But, a Solar Spill results in everyone saying, “WHAT A BEAUTIFUL DAY!”

Hop on board of this Soul Train! Everyone welcome here.

If we “listen into” the Silenced Spring, what might we discover? Open your perception.

ARRESTED BY WONDER

Words of inspiration and photos of this year’s Workshops with all your senses – your eyes, ears, hearts, minds – The tiny bees are telling us that something is amiss. Their illness is an indication of a much bigger problem.

The ear is associated with the spiral, the whorled shell and the sun… the seat of memory, receptivity, inquisitiveness, and awakening.

The University of Michigan Symbolism Project

“Only within the 20th century has biological thought been focused on ecology, or the relation of the living creature to its environment. Awareness of ecological relationships is—or should be—the basis of modern conservation programs, for it is useless to attempt to preserve a living species unless the kind of land of water it requires is also preserved. So delicately interwoven are the relationships that when we disturb one thread of the community fabric we alter it all—perhaps almost imperceptibly, perhaps so drastically that destruction follows.”
